On June 7, 2010, this Court modified the defendant's conditions of supervised release to include residence for up to 180 days at Cornell Corrections because the defendant lacked a residence after his release from custody on June 6, 2010. On October 26, 2010, this Court conducted a status conference, and the parties agreed that the defendant should continue to reside at Cornell Corrections.

Therefore, the defendant shall reside at Cornell Corrections for a period of up to 90 days, commencing December 4, 2010 (the day the defendant's 180-day initial commitment expires) and observe the rules of that facility. The defendant's next appearance before this Court is a status conference on February 8, 2011.
